

Skills Manager at a Glance

CORSKILL Australia have more than 14 years experience in the training industry and understands the issue for our clients of the amount of data that can be generated throughout the process of tracking the progress of a significant number of employees during workplace delivered training programs.

The Skills Manager module is designed for clients that need to link organisational skills needs (expressed as skills sets and or competency based terms) and occupational profiles (expressed as skills sets and or competency based terms) with a potentially unlimited number of structured training programs individually designed to overcome skill and or competency deficits and to meet employee's staff development aspirations.

The Skills Manager provides the capacity to record individual employees' personal training plans, to monitor their progress through their individual training programs and keep a record of the skills and or competencies that they have developed; more importantly provides the data that is necessary to case manage a trainee / employee along the skills / competency development pathway designed by your organisation to meet your organisational skills needs (expressed as skills sets and or competency based terms).
